

ADDENDUM

References. Authors should refer to the Chicago Manual of Style (University of Chicago Press) as a style guide. Endnotes, including both sources and explanatory matter, should be kept to a minimum and numbered in the order in which they appear in the text, not alphabetically.

Journal citations must include either a full date of publication or the following: volume, issue number, and year. Please do not provide sources with abbreviated journal names, inverted author last/first names, or other conventions followed by the Uniform Requirements for Manuscripts Submitted to Biomedical Journals (the so-called Vancouver requirements). Improperly formatted notes may be returned to the author for revision, possibly delaying a paper's publication.

Endnotes should conform to the following examples:

1. M.S. Sparer and L.D. Brown, "Uneasy Alliances: Managed Care Plans Formed by Safety-Net Providers," Health Affairs 19, no.4 (2000): 23-35.
2. R.H. Miller and H.S. Luft, "Managed Care Plan Performance since 1980: A Literature Analysis," Journal of the American Medical Association 271, no. 19 (1994): 1512-1519.
3. P. Starr, The Social Transformation of American Medicine (New York: Basic Books, 1982), 5-20.
4. N. Jeffrey, "Kaiser Permanente Decides It Won't Cover Viagra Pills," Wall Street Journal, 22 June 1998.

If you cite documents appearing on the World Wide Web, please include the following information: Author's name, document title, date of publication, complete and accurate URL, and date of access. Example:

National Committee on Vital and Health Statistics, "Third Annual Report to Congress on the Implementation of the Administrative Simplification of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act," 27 March 2000, www.ncvhs.hhs.gov/yr3-toc.htm (25 August 2003).

Note: Each exhibit should include a note indicating the source(s) for the data/information presented.
