Lilly the Pink

_D_
We'll drink a drink - a drink

_A_
to Lilly the Pink - the Pink - the Pink,

_D_
The savior of the human race!

_A_
She invented medicinal compound,

_D_
Most efficacious in every case.

Now here's a story, a little bit gory,
A little bit happy, a little bit sad,
Of Lilly the Pink and her medicinal compound
And how it drove her to the bad.

Well Ebenezer thought he was Julius Ceasar,
So they put him in a home,
And then they gave him medicinal compound,
And now he's emperor of Rome.

Chorus

Reddy Clinger the opera singer
Could break a glass with his voice, they said.
Rubbed his tonsils with medicinal compound,
And now they break glasses over his head.

Johnny Hammer had a te-te-terrible stammer -
He could hardly sa-sa-say a word!
And, so, they ga-ga-gave him medicinal compounds,
And now he's see-see-seen, but never heard.

Chorus

Uncle Paul he was very small - he
Was the shortest man in town.
Rubbed his body with medicinal compound
And now he weighs only half a pound!

Lilly died and went up to heaven;
All the church bells they did ring.
She took with her medicinal compound...
Hark! - the herald angels sing!

Chorus
